A Message from Fr. Ed

Sharing Our Faith; Securing Our Future

Welcome. Love. Serve. – This is the mission of St. Raymond Parish and a driving force behind the work we do. Thank you again to everyone who participated in the surveys provided the week of June 10 and 11 regarding project plans for our parish. Your input allows us to continue to welcome, love and serve God and our community.

It is with great joy that I share with you a brief update from the survey regarding plans for our capital campaign. As noted in recent bulletins, St. Raymond is participating in the Archdiocesan campaign, To Teach Who Christ Is. But, our primary objective is to focus on our own parish needs through our own campaign that will include the commitment to the Archdiocese.

The purpose of the in-pew survey, online survey, and individual conversations, was to provide you an opportunity to share what you think to be the most pressing projects we should complete as part of this campaign. Additionally, we asked if you would financially support such an extraordinary effort.

I am pleased to share that the large majority of parishioners who participated in this review process support a campaign for St. Raymond Parish. We received extremely generous indications of financial support and we heard from you that it is important to address some, but not all, of the projects that were outlined in the survey. St. Raymond will be conducting a campaign to address the most critical safety, accessibility, and infrastructure needs that affect the long-term viability of our campus. We will accomplish this through our own campaign entitled, Sharing Our Faith; Securing Our Future.

You told us what is important to repair and update around our campus facilities. We think it's important to listen to you as well as act on what has been identified as critical projects through expert opinions. Early planning for the Sharing Our Faith; Securing Our Future campaign is underway so that we can maintain our facilities. We hope you are as excited as we are!

Over the coming months, every parishioner will have the opportunity to learn more about and support our initiative. We ask that when it is your turn to consider supporting, we hope you will approach this effort with a generous heart.

God's choicest blessings,

Fr. Ed Panch

Our Opportunity Awaits!

Thank you to everyone that participated in our in-pew survey as well as those who completed it online a couple weeks ago. The big question is, What was this for and how does it relate to St. Raymond? Over the past couple weeks, you have been briefly made aware of projects that St. Raymond looks to address. Additionally, reference has been made to the To Teach Who Christ Is (TTWCI) campaign.

Back in 2012, Cardinal George and the Archdiocese decided to embark on a campaign to strengthen faith formation efforts within the Archdiocese. Each parish was asked to support this one-time capital and endowment campaign. Part of the effort is directed toward Archdiocesan needs, with funds earmarked for scholarships to Catholic schools, training for religious education catechists, innovative religious education programs and other critical facility needs. The added benefit of this campaign is that the larger portion of the funds generated by our parish, remain with St. Raymond to help strengthen and benefit our needs.

As you recall, in 2012 and for the next few years, St. Raymond was in the midst of its own Upholding the Tradition campaign. Because of this, St. Raymond requested and was granted permission to delay participation in this new Archdiocesan campaign as long as possible before the Archdiocesan campaign was completed. Following the completion of our Upholding the Tradition campaign in 2015, it is now our turn to take part in this Archdiocesan-wide effort.

In short, for the TTWCI campaign, each parish is given a minimum campaign target set by the Archdiocese and based on our annual offertory. How does this impact St. Raymond? Aside from our portion that goes to TTWCI, the parish has the opportunity to address its own needs under our own campaign title. There is a range of projects we know must be addressed to prolong the functionality of our parish facilities. These potential projects were all outlined in the survey questions you previously reviewed.

We have an extraordinary opportunity to take care of our most pressing campus projects. At this time, St. Raymond is in the planning stages of a campaign to satisfy the requirements of the Archdiocesan TTWCI campaign as well as our local needs. We are beyond grateful for your participation in the survey. It's important the parish listens and includes what you deem to be of a high priority project based on your survey responses and what we already know to be important. We will use the survey results to help develop a list of the St. Raymond campaign projects and the corresponding target goal for these local projects. These local projects, coupled with our share of the TTWCI campaign, will shape the magnitude of the campaign.
