St. Raymond de Pennafort, patron saint of Barcelona, Spain

St. Raymond de Pennafort was a native of Spain and a contemporary of Saints Thomas Aquinas, Francis of Assisi, Bonaventure and Albert the Great.

A quiet and introspective man, he is the one whom Pope Gregory IX chose to compile into one document the complicated laws of the Church for use in the schools and courts of his day. His document, called the "Decretals of Gregory IX," was the authentic source of legislation in the Church from 1234 to 1918 when it was replaced by the "Code of Canon Law." He also founded, with St. Peter Nolasco, the military order of Our Lady of Ransom and came up with the revolutionary idea of converting Moors and Jews to Catholicism by teaching them in their own tongues.

Born sometime between 1175 and 1180, Raymond de Pennafort was a very modest man. It is said that he was so fond of his anonymity that he concealed all records of the day and year of his birth. But he was unable to conceal the location. He was born in the village of Villafranca de Penades between the cities of Barcelona and Tarragona in country marked by hills and freshwater streams.

Raymond was a member of one of the province of Catalonia's most prominent families. The Pennafort family was closely related to the Counts of Barcelona and were also able to claim kinship with the Kings of Aragon, another province of Spain.

Like many children of noble birth in his day, Raymond was dedicated to the service of the Catholic Church when he was still in his cradle. At a very young age he left his family and joined youths from all ranks of society at the Cathedral School of Barcelona where he studied and prayed in quiet and solitude. He was there from such an early age that it is said that he eventually felt alien outside of a religious community.

By all accounts a physical giant of a man, Raymond spent eight years winning the hearts of the people of Barcelona by teaching them rhetoric and logic and refusing to take payment for his efforts. He considered knowledge to be a gift from God and something that was common property, not to be sold.

In 1210 Raymond decided to further his own education by traveling to the University of Bologna in Italy to study law. This was the leading school of law in the Christian world at the time and its prestige was similar to that of Harvard University School of Law today. Raymond spent six years studying there and earned his Doctor of Laws degree. Afterward, he once again took to teaching the citizenry for free, earning the hearts of the people of Bologna, too.

The course of his life was drastically altered in 1218, however, when a group of Friars Preachers (Dominican monks), led by Dominic of Castile, arrived in Bologna. A huge number of his contemporaries were highly influenced by these monks and chose to leave the University to join their Order. Raymond was also quite interested.

But soon after their arrival, Berengar IV de Palou, the Bishop of Barcelona, also arrived in Bologna seeking Dominic of Castile. He wanted Dominic to bring a group of his friars to Barcelona to battle the indifference of the people of his city. He also wanted Raymond de Pennafort, a native of his own diocese, to return home to teach in a school for the clergy which he hoped the friars would establish there. Raymond agreed and together they convinced Dominic to send members of his Order over the Pyrenees Mountains to start the Santa Catarina Monastery in Barcelona.

Once they were back in Barcelona, the Bishop quickly chose Raymond to fill a vacancy on his staff and months later he was elected to the Office of Provost. But Raymond yearned to sacrifice himself wholly to God and after associating with the friars, he ardently wanted to join them. So on Good Friday, 1222 he became a Dominican.

For the next five years Raymond prayed from midnight to well into the morning, sleeping only briefly. He spent all of his time saying Mass, studying the law, listening to lectures and studying the Scriptures. He fasted every day of the week, taking only one meal daily, except Sunday when he ate two meals with wine to honor the Lord's resurrection. During this time period he is credited with performing two miracles. He healed a woman's fever and a man's long-recurring head pain.

It was also during this period in his life that the Virgin Mary is said to have appeared to Raymond, Peter Nolasco and James I, King of Aragon. She instructed them to form an order for the ransom of Christian slaves from the tyranny of the Moors (Saracens) who enslaved them. Raymond and Peter, with support from James I, subsequently formed a lay military order called the "Order of Our Lady of Ransom for the Redemption of Captives." No use of the sword was permitted by members. Instead, they sought to ransom captives with money and they also sold themselves into captivity in order to liberate others. Members of religious communities were eventually allowed to become members of the order and its members became known as "Mercedarians," short for the "Order of Mercy."

Raymond's life took another sharp turn in 1227 thanks to the visit to Spain of a Papal Legate, John d'Abbeville. Rome was far away and the Pope's rules were only half-heartedly applied in Spain. The Church in Spain was literally falling apart and reform was desperately needed. So the Papal Legate traveled through the Spanish countryside, trying to start a grassroots movement for reform from the Spanish bishops.

Raymond was asked to go along and help smooth the Legate's way with his countrymen. It is said that during that trip Raymond's noble birth was obvious to all who heard him speak. Furthermore, his influence on the people was so strong that the Legate's visit was a great success, triggering reform throughout Spain and prompting d'Abbeville to mention Raymond to Pope Gregory IX when he returned to Rome.

The Pope was intrigued by Raymond de Pennafort. He wanted to meet this man who could influence a whole nation. So he sent for him and as soon as

The Faith Community of St Raymond de Penafort

Raymond arrived in Rome, Pope Gregory appointed him chaplain and penitentiary for the Vatican and made him his own personal confessor. In his capacity as chaplain Raymond conferred on difficult cases of conscience and as penitentiary he imposed penances for sins whose remission was reserved to the Pope.

He was also instrumental, during this time, in introducing the Inquisition to Aragon. He and the Pope both wanted to bind Church and State into a theocratic empire in which heretics would be guilty of not only sins against the Church, but also high treason against the State. He wanted to see heretics jailed so that they would have no contact with the "faithful." But he counseled caution and prudence in these matters. It was not until two centuries later that the Inquisition was formally established as a tribunal.

Raymond's work during this time was tedious, but hidden, so he enjoyed his duties. But when Pope Gregory IX asked Raymond to become a bishop, the Spanish scholar/priest was so horrified by the thought that he fell seriously ill and had to return home to recuperate, so the Pope was forced to choose another bishop.

Back in his native land once more, Raymond resumed a quiet life as "Brother Raymond," compiling a book for his students based on his law notes. But he was not to be left in peace. Suero Gomez, the Provincial of Spain, commanded him to draw up a handy compendium for priests featuring short synopses of cases most frequently mentioned in confession and how to handle them. Known as the "Raymundiana" or the "Summa Raymundi," its cases were divided into four categories: crimes against God; sins against neighbors; sins against the ecclesiastical state; and matrimonial sins. Its influence was felt far and wide.

In fact, before it was even published in 1235, Pope Gregory summoned Raymond back to Rome to take on a similar task for him. Pope Gregory felt that a codification of Canon Law was necessary because the laws of the Church at the time were very confusing and spread throughout numerous different texts. So he commissioned Raymond to collect, consolidate and codify the existing laws in one book.

According to Thomas M. Schwertner in his 1935 book entitled St. Raymond of Pennafort, Pope Gregory IX saw that for the good of both the clergy and the laity, a general reordering of the ecclesiastical legislation was needed for a more expeditious treatment of questions both in Rome and the dioceses. So he asked Raymond "to collect the scattered laws and to remove all confusion, contradictions and superfluity from them in order that the faithful might be peaceful and honest."

Four years later, Raymond issued the fruits of his labors, the supreme work of his life. Called the "Decretals of Pope Gregory IX," the compendium was 2154 chapters long and was organized under five headings: persons obtaining office in the Church; civil judgments; clergy – their morals and temporal goods; law of matrimony; and crimes, penalties and manner of inflicting them. For the next 680 years (until 1918) it was the authentic source of legislation in the Church and the code by which the discipline of the Church was directed.

Raymond's work was not yet done, however. Just as he was finishing up the Decretals in 1238, the Dominican Provincials elected him Master General of the Order, succeeding Jordan of Saxony who was killed in a shipwreck. It was not a position he coveted. In fact, he argued with the Provincials and tried to refuse the appointment, but to no avail and he was forced to take on the direction of over 30,000 friars around the Christian world.

During his tenure as Master General he drew the Dominican nuns closer to the Order and also did what he did best. He rewrote and tightened up the Constitution of the Order. Remarkably similar to Constitutions that were later written for both the British Empire and the United States, Raymond's rewrite of the Dominican Constitution was not substantially changed until 1924.

In 1240, after serving as his Order's leader for two years, Raymond resigned due to ill health. But he was not yet finished making an impact on his Church. He opened a small school in Tunis in which Moslems were taught the Church's teachings in their own language – Arabic and another school in Murcia where the Jews of Spain were taught in Hebrew. This was the first time that anyone had attempted a systematic missionary activity among the Jews and Moslems in their own languages. Many of the faithful were scandalized, but Raymond's experiment was very successful. Over 10,000 men in Africa and Spain were reportedly converted through these efforts. In fact, many Jewish and Moslem converts left their native lands to take refuge with him and he asked for gifts from the wealthy to support his converts.

Raymond spent the last 30 years of his life as an invalid, spending his time in prayer. He considered it to be "interior crucifixion," a type of martyrdom.

Despite his ill health and seclusion, he was frequently consulted by King James of Aragon and King Alfonso of Castile on matters of the law and religion. In fact, one of Spain's favorite stories about St. Raymond de Pennafort concerned a disagreement he had with King James of Aragon in 1263.

Raymond, very elderly by this time, heard that King James was planning to go to the Balearic Islands for an assignment. Raymond strongly objected and threatened to leave Majorca, where he was living. As the story goes, James closed all of the ports in Majorca so that Raymond could not leave. So Raymond performed a miracle. He sailed 160 leagues to Barcelona on his cloak. Many Spanish hymns and poems are actually based on this story.

Raymond de Pennafort died in Barcelona on Epiphany in 1275 after living for almost a century. Requests to have him canonized began flooding Rome from Spain as early as 1297 but it took over 300 years for Raymond de Pennafort to actually be proclaimed St. Raymond de Pennafort. He was finally named a saint by Pope Clement VIII on April 29, 1601. By 1604 his feast day was a Holy Day of Obligation throughout the Spanish kingdom of Catalonia and in 1647 he was named the patron saint of Barcelona by the Holy See, a title he still holds. For obvious reasons, he is also considered the patron saint of those skilled in canon law. ✱

RCIA

Rite of Christian Initiation of Adults

Interested In Becoming Catholic?

One of the great gifts we've been given is the opportunity to BE church together! At St. Raymond's we do that in so many ways: through our liturgies, formation and education programs, outreach programs and our socializing and hospitality. We continually strive to create an atmosphere where God's active presence will be discovered among us.

And so we always try to welcome new members – especially those who might be searching for something more. Sometimes all that is needed is a gentle invitation -- a little encouragement from someone to do something that we've been thinking about for a long time -- a little encouragement to stop putting something off -- and recognize that perhaps now is the time to take action.

And so we encourage you, our parishioners, to prayerfully consider people you know -- a spouse, friend, relative, co-worker, or neighbor -- and invite them to explore our faith.

The RCIA (Rite of Christian Initiation of Adults) is designed for men and women who have never been baptized or who were baptized in another Christian denomination and are considering becoming Catholic. It is also appropriate for baptized Catholics who have received little formal religious education or who have not received the sacraments of Eucharist or Confirmation.

The RCIA is a wonderful process, involving some of our own parishioners who accompany the candidates on their faith journey. Our regular meetings are on Monday evenings beginning in mid-September.

Summer Supper

Summer Suppers during COVID19

As much as we might like to invite you to sit down at our tables for supper, this summer, we can't.

Impelled by a concern for our guests and volunteers, the Summer Suppers program has been modified to adapt to the COVID19 social distancing protocols.

Volunteers will be screened each night for elevated temperature and signs of the virus. Additionally, they will wear masks and gloves and observe all appropriate safety guidelines. Meals will be delivered without contact and we ask that you leave the property immediately so that we can serve those behind you. Please help us by wearing a mask, too.

Be safe. We pray that next summer, in the "new normal", we can again share supper in person around a table as community.

Ministry Information

We are all in need to stay connected during our social distancing. Here are the ministries should you need to reach out.

Support Groups for Those Suffering with Addiction and Their Loved Ones

Alcoholics Anonymous (AA) | Co-Dependents Anonymous (CODA)

Drug, alcohol and gambling addiction is a disease which is chronic, progressive and treatable, but terminal if untreated. Recovery is possible if the person is willing to ask for help and work toward that goal. Families with addicted family members also need help and understanding. Worry, fear and anger destroy both relationships and the family unit. The Substance Abuse Team is available to reach out with support and care. CONFIDENTIALITY AND ANONYMITY are the very essence of our ministry.

Are you aware that any parishioner who is recuperating following an accident, illness, or surgery is welcome to receive the Eucharist at home? If you or a loved one is homebound and would like a visit from a Minister of Care, please contact Sr. Val at 847-253-8600 x 143 or email Sr.Val@St-Raymond.org to make arrangements.

We are happy to bring St. Raymond to you!

Patients at Northwest Community Hospital

In late October we received word from the Spiritual Care Services Department at Northwest Community Hospital that they will no longer send the daily patient census to the Ministry of Care Coordinators at the parishes and other churches. Up to this time, Sr. Val received a confidential listing of St. Raymond parishioners at NCH, enabling us to offer the pastoral care that we want to provide for our parishioners experiencing illness requiring hospital care. Due to this change in policy, there is no way to know if any of our parishioners are at NCH. Therefore, if a loved one has been hospitalized at NCH, we would deeply appreciate a call or email with this information. This is also true for patients at Lutheran General, Alexian Brothers, and Resurrection Hospitals. Please contact Sr. Val at 847-253-8600 x 143 or Sr.Val@St-Raymond.org when a loved one is hospitalized so that we can continue to provide pastoral care during a time of illness. Thank you.

ST. RAYMOND PARISH DOMESTIC VIOLENCE OUTREACH

AWARENESS

Domestic violence is a pattern of behavior. It is used to exert power and control over another person. It is found in the context of a dating, family or household relationship.

Questions to ask:

- Does your partner isolate you from family and friends?
- Are you being physically, psychologically, economically or sexually abused?
- Is your partner attempting to destroy your self-esteem and self-confidence?

Domestic violence victims often report:

"I didn't know it was abuse."
"I thought I could fix it."
"I didn't tell anyone."

These are traps that keep people bound.

Domestic violence. Dating Violence.
No Excuse

You are loved and you are not alone.

Pray for Our Sick As Members of the Parish Faith Community, it is our responsibility to remember both in concrete and spiritual ways those who cannot celebrate with us each week because they are ill. Those who are sick in turn, remember all of us daily in their prayers and in their sufferings. We experience many blessings because of their remembering us. And so ... please remember in your prayers the people listed. *Infant
