Lent

February 14, 2021

Reflections

Dear St. Raymond Parish Family,

This week we mark two important days in our lives as loving and faith-filled people. Today we celebrate Valentine's Day and just three days later, on Wednesday February 17th, we begin the sacred Lenten Season with the observance of Ash Wednesday. Yes, Lent is early this year! It may seem strange to have such contrasting days so close together, but perhaps this offers us an opportunity to link these days together in an effort to deepen our relationships with God and others. As we all know, Valentine's Day has long been designated as a time to show the special people in our lives just how important they are to us. We have this day to let those we love know how much grace, beauty, and happiness they bring into our lives. We may do so with flowers, cards, candy, or a festive meal. In the cold and snow of this winter and as we are still navigating life under the shadow of the coronavirus, we need days such as this to lift our spirits. At the same time, this week we begin the sacred Season of Lent with its hallmarks of prayer, fasting, and almsgiving. During these forty days we are invited to reflect deeply on where we need to turn away from those habits or practices that are hurtful to ourselves and others. Admittedly this is difficult. It's hard to really look inside ourselves and be open to seeing where we may have been wrong, where we may have hurt or distanced ourselves from others or made choices that are damaging to our relationships. We have the gift of this Lenten Season to turn back to God and to others with all our hearts. So perhaps it's no accident that Valentine's Day and Ash Wednesday fall in the same week. To assist us in our Lenten journey this year I would like to offer the following prayer that comes to us from St. Francis of Assisi. When he was struggling with the realization that he needed to change the direction of his life, he knelt before the cross in the church of San Damiano and prayed:

Most high and glorious God,
bring light to the darkness of my heart.
Give me right faith, certain hope,
and perfect charity.
Lord, give me insight and wisdom that I may know your holy and true will.

I believe that Francis prayed these words often, especially as he grew in love and appreciation of the Passion of Christ. He came to such a deep love of the Passion that he wanted to surround himself with the cross always and chose to clothe himself and his followers in a habit made in the shape of a cross.

May this Lent 2021 be a time when we too grow in love and appreciation of the Passion of Christ and also deepen our love and appreciation for the important people in our lives. Happy Valentine's Day, and may this be a peaceful, blessed, and grace-filled Lent for all of us.

Catholic Relief Services Rice Bowl Alms

Rice bowls will be available for pick-up in the Narthex of church, outside after livestream masses, at the parish office, or in the bins outside church/parish office. St. Raymond School will distribute rice bowls to all students.

For many years St. Raymond parishioners have participated in Catholic Relief Services Rice Bowl Lenten Alms to help our sisters and brothers across the globe overcome the hardships of hunger and malnutrition. In doing so we also help to make the world a better place. This year, Rice Bowls will be available in the narthex on Ash Wednesday, February 17th and the first weekend of Lent February 20th-21st. They will also be available in the church office and the bins outside of the church and PMC doors. Please take one and fill it with your loose change and return it on Palm Sunday.

Your donation helps provide lifesaving support for more than 159 million people in more than 100 countries! For further interesting reading about this effort or online giving, please access <https://www.crsricebowl.org>

Why Our Students LOVE SRS

REFLECTIONS FROM OUR STUDENTS

Some of our SRS students recorded videos sharing why they are grateful for their Catholic education. Read some snippets from their testimonials to learn why they love St. Raymond School!

St. Raymond teaches me how to be a better person. Everyone that is here is very helpful to one another. Our community is very important and very helpful because we support others that are in need through service projects. -Anthony

St. Raymond is the best Catholic school to go to because of the amazing faculty & staff. They always make sure that we get the best education. This is such an amazing school and I would never want to go anywhere else. -Molly

Another reason why I like St. Raymond School is the classes are kept small in each grade and from that you can get some pretty close friendships. I am lucky to have been a St. Raymond Saint. -Brock

I think St. Raymond is a great school because of the amazing people who work, learn and teach here. I have met a lot of loyal friends that I can look up to. St. Raymond is amazing because of the super fun events that occur every year. -Jack

I think St. Raymond is a great school because it teaches me to be a better person and has taught me to grow in faith. Catholic education is important to me because it teaches me to be a better friend and has brought me closer to God. -Sofia

St. Raymond School is a good school to go to because it is full of nice people and teachers will help you if you do not get something. Also, people will treat you with kindness and fairness. It is important to our religious education so you can learn about about God and Jesus. -Patrick

Help serve those in our community

Setting priorities and identifying needs

During the summer of 1997, Father Bernie set in motion a program which he hoped would address needs he saw in the parish on several fronts: adult formation, drawing more adults into leadership roles within the parish and determining the direction the parish would take on the issue of its young people. It was to be a massive program involving hundreds of people, meeting once a week during Lent to discuss parenting issues in small groups. To handle coordination of the program and training of parishioner discussion leaders, Father Bernie hired Jerry Kellman, a layman with a Master's of Divinity from Loyola University.

The theological basis for such a program, Kellman said, was that "we believe that if you allow people to talk about the things that matter, they will become a more authentic church, closer to Christ's vision of the kingdom. Such conversations allow us to get on the same page as one community. We believe that the Holy Spirit will guide us when we strive to do something that touches the entire community."

In addition, he said that while the Church, like any institution, must focus serious attention on those activities on which it depends for survival, including money, building, ongoing formation programs and its liturgical life, the Church still exists to serve the world.

"If we don't try to touch people's lives in their daily struggles, if the turn towards God isn't reflected in our homes and workplace and communities, then our love of God is limited," he explained.

"I genuinely believe that the priests by themselves and even the priests with their staffs cannot help the Church through the challenges it is facing now and will be facing in the future," Kellman told the parish newsletter, Radius, when the program was announced. "I believe that the solution lies in empowerment of the lay people and connecting them together."

"We need lay people to step forward and provide leadership on issues relating our faith to other areas of our lives like our jobs, child-raising, etc.," he continued. "And in order to do that we have to get large numbers of people in the parish talking to each other about issues they might not otherwise discuss."

"Our goal is to work toward setting a grassroots agenda or vision for where St. Raymond is going on any number of issues," he said, "and we need to involve people who normally don't get involved in the Church to any significant degree."

"It is a real challenge to move beyond the core of people who always carry the ball at any parish. But that is what we are trying to do. That is why we chose 'parenting' as our initial topic for this reflection program because while some of these people may not really be involved in the daily life of a parish, they do care about their children and it creates an opening for parish staff and volunteers to step in and say, 'if you are really here at Church for your kids, let's talk about what we're all doing and why'."

"Parenting is a community event. It is an illusion to think that we parent alone because what I do affects you and what you do affects me," he stated.

"We want to help our children make wise choices in the stressful world they face and in many cases, we are counting on the parish to sustain our kids. But if we don't get together and discuss our strategy, we can't work together," Kellman explained. "We need to truly create a community."

The Reflection Program gained wide acceptance throughout the parish, engaging over 600 parishioners in active discussion for the first time and thus making them feel much more a part of the St. Raymond community.

"Once I got there I found that it was nice to just sit and talk to people and know that you're not worrying alone," said parishioner Sue Loebbaka, a Reflection group participant, in a subsequent article. "I hope that participation in these groups makes people more comfortable with one another and helps break down some of the many barriers which may exist between parishioners and the parish staff."

"If our children's future is important to us, then anything we can learn from each other will help both them and us to grow. We need a support group to help us counter all of those outside forces which we wish weren't there but we know are," she continued.

"Our children need so much more than they are getting out there, so I felt that it would be beneficial if we could get some values established and if every one of us was working off a similar game plan."

"We don't expect a blueprint for the parish," Kellman emphasized, "but we do expect issues and priorities to emerge for the entire parish. The pastor, parish staff and program leadership are committed to concrete changes and growth that benefits the life of our community." *
